

The udder cover attaches to the back elastic of the belly wrap, as well as to the back legs of the blanket.

Put the belly wrap flat down on a surface, stretch the side of the udder guard (that doesn't have straps) out completely and sew it on to the belly wrap.

Put the blanket on the horse and measure out a good spot on the back leg, close to the seam. Mark it and with a strong thread sew the buckles to the blanket.

Put on the blanket as you normally do. When the belly part is in place grab on to the two straps of the udder guard and fasten them with the buckles that you sewed on earlier.